Raging Blizzards and Floods Sweeping Over the Battle Field in West Flanders, Causing an Increase of the Suffering of the Troops—Artillery Duels the Spectacular Feature of the Fighting in the Flooded District—Berlin Reports That The British Cruisers Were Disabled by German Shells on the Belgian Coast.

These troops arrived at Marseilles in twelve transports and were received with great enthusiasm.

Fighting in a Blizzard

There is a raging blizzard and floods are sweeping the battlefields in West Flanders. Rains, coupled with Belgian dyke cutting have inundated 1200 square miles north and south of the Yser river and canal.

It is reported the floods have cut off the Germans at Dixmude, now officially admitted to be in the hands of the Belgians. Spectacular features of the 65 day battle series are artillery duels fought in the flooded area. Cold weather has increased the suffering to the endurance limit.

British Warships Disabled

Berlin, Nov. 16.—A Geneva dispatch states that the British cruisers Falcon, Brilliant and Rinaldo were disabled by German guns on the Belgian coast.

ANNUAL DONATION DAY AT CLEARFIELD HOSPITAL

The Womens Auxiliary of the Clearfield hospital desires to call the attention of the public to the Eighth Annual Donation.

In view of the generous response to the recent "debt raising campaign" it has been thought best to omit, for this year, the customary house-to-house appeal for contributions. The need for renewed supplies is, however, always urgent, and such articles as jellies, canned fruits, groceries, coal, kindling wood, soap, old muslin, etc. will be gratefully welcomed at any time.

The week beginning November 23 has been fixed as donation week, and the different places of business have kindly offered to deliver at the hospital all goods purchased from them. All other donations may be left at the hospital or the following named residences: Mrs. Frank Fielding, South Front St.; Mrs. W. I. Swoope, Second and Pine Sts.; Mrs. H. B. Powell, South Second St.; Mrs. S. J. Waterworth, Second and Cherry Sts.; Mrs. J. P. O'Loughlin, Front St.; Mrs. A. H. Woodward, Locust St.; Mrs. G. J. Uncle Sam Called to Account

(By International News Service)

Tokio, Nov. 16.—The first allegation that the United States has failed to keep its neutrality inviolate was made in a Kobe dispatch, which declares that the Emden was enabled to find and sink the Troilus as a result of a wireless sent to the Germans from Manila.

The information contained in the wireless was secured from a German merchant who had been arrested and tried as a spy.

EMPEROR WILHELM WITH AND WITHOUT HIS FAMOUS TURNED UP MUSTACHE.

London, Nov. 16.—Reports from Copenhagen are to the effect that the Kaiser has dropped off the aggressively up-pointed ends of his mustache and that the operation has worked a miraculous change in the appearance of the War Lord. The former almost ferocious martial expression has given place to one of complete dejection.

OFFICER WRITES OF GREAT BATTLE

Vivid Description of Fight in Retreat From Mons

798 OF 1000 MEN WERE LOST

Declares That the Conflict Was Worse Than the Boer War—Examples of Foolishness of English Red Tape—Army Goods Held Up Because Nails in Boxes Were Not Regulation.

London, Nov. 16.—A letter from a young officer of the Royal Munster Fusiliers gives an interesting description of the fighting in which his battalion lost 798 in killed, wounded and missing out of a total of 1,000—the heaviest loss sustained by any single unit. It was during the great retreat from Mons. The writer says:

"We fought a small battle just on the frontier, without any losses, and we retreated to Fes, near where we started all the marching. Then the real fighting began. The first I knew of the fighting was when I was awakened at 3 o'clock one morning and ordered to proceed at once to my platoon to reinforce another outpost company which was being attacked. We fought for two days and just as we thought it was all over we found we were surrounded. Then the desperate fighting began.

"I could not describe the horrors of it on paper, but we were about three-quarters of a battalion fighting six German battalions and without any chance of relief. We did our best. We had one section of the artillery and two machine guns with us, which helped a lot, but they were soon knocked out. Our colonel was a wonder to see; he had absolutely no fear and I followed him and helped all I could in every charge, but he was killed by a shell. We had, I think, 10 officers killed, five wounded and the remainder prisoners.

"I was wounded in two places. One bullet had pierced my throat. The pieces of my left arm had been blown away by a piece of shell. Luckily there were no bones broken.

Beats Boer War

"The wound in my throat is of course very troublesome. They put in a tube which makes it possible for me to breathe without difficulty, and I can eat and drink. I cannot speak at all. The doctor says it will be all right when the wound heals and that I shall be able to speak when they take the tube out.

"We killed and wounded a great many Germans and they say themselves that we made a gallant fight of it. Our fellows who were in the South African war say it was child's play to this and that all the Boer campaign there never was a battle so fiercely fought as the one which we were knocked out."

English Red Tape

Not even Lord Kitchener has been able to scrape all of the red tape which has strangled the war office for so long. Despite his arduous labors of organization, however, Kitchener has managed to do something toward introducing business methods in Whitehall, but the "Tite Barnacles" still hold sway in certain departments. A notable example has just come to light at the docks, where an officer noticed a workman busily engaged in unpacking bottles of port intended for the hospitals in France and Belgium. The cases in which the bottles were originally packed appeared to be quite serviceable and the officer inquired why it was necessary to unpack them.

Then it was explained to him that during the South African war some organizing genius had laid it down that bottles of wine, spirits, etc., for the troops, should be packed in cases of 10. The contractor who supplied the port had sent them in cases of 12 and red tape insisted on the change of cases.

Nails Hold Up Goods

Perhaps a more fragrant case was that of a contractor who had $50,000 worth of goods returned because the packing cases had not been fastened with the right kind of nails. During the Crimean war the British war office decided to use what are known as rose-headed nails and, although modern improvements have installed the flat headed nail in general use, the war office still sticks to the 1857 pattern. Getting a rush order the contractor, who hadn't a rose-headed nail in the place, foolishly imagined that in war time ordinary nails would do, but the "Tite Barnacles" said "No."

MUST PROCURE A PERMIT TO LAY SMALL DRAIN

Sunbury, Nov. 16.—Because it wants to do a simple job of laying a drain pipe to carry surface water off one of its streets here under the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad, with that corporation's consent, borough council has learned that Toner's public-service commission must first give its consent to the legality of the agreement after it learns just what is to be done.

To do this, an advertisement must be printed at least four weeks before a meeting of the commission, after which interested persons are to appear before the body and explain the project in full, all of which, it is believed, will probably double the cost of a bit of work any ordinary laborer can finish.

Clearfield borough asked the Pennsylvania Railroad company to lay the sewer pipe beneath its tracks on the Spruce street sewer line. This was done at the expense of the Railroad company, but the Public Service commission wants ten copies of the form of agreement.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS NOW OPEN

A New Era in The Banking Business in The United States

WILL REMEDY MANY DEFECTS

Centralization of Reserves Will Go a Long Way to Prevent Panics Such as Have Occurred Under the Old Banking Laws—Will Greatly Strengthen the Financial System.

November 16th is the date fixed for the opening of the twelve new federal reserve banks authorized by act of congress last December. The bank for this district is located at Philadelphia. The establishment of these new banks marks a fundamental change in our banking system. Students of finance have agreed that in view of the wonderful growth and industrial development of this country during the last half century our present banking laws are inadequate. The national banking system was established during the civil war, and was called into being by the urgent needs of the federal government. Its primary objects were to provide a market for government bonds and to furnish a stable currency at a time when the country was flooded with depreciated state bank notes. The banks have been working under the same law ever since. Very few amendments have been made. As a war measure it was a success, and it has served the country during a long period of the greatest commercial development in its history.

The new law does not replace the national bank act. Only in a few particulars is that act superseded. Certain weaknesses have developed which have been responsible for several severe financial crises. The most notable have been the panics of 1837, 1893, and 1907. On each of these occasions the business of the country received a set-back from which it took years to recover. These disturbances were due largely to two facts: First, our currency was inelastic; second, our system of reserves was bad.

There are times when a much larger volume of actual money is needed than at others. This is due to changing requirements of business throughout the country, and usually varies with the seasons of the year. The amount of United States notes outstanding is practically fixed. Likewise the supply of metallic money is comparatively constant. Hence any variation in the amount of currency demanded by the needs of the country must be provided for in the issue of bank notes. Under the national banking laws the supply of bank notes could not easily be increased or diminished. This defect

DR. GREGORY ADDRESSES LARGE AUDIENCE HERE

A special train brought one hundred men from DuBois yesterday afternoon for the meeting in the opera house, which, in disregard of the rain, was almost filled with enthusiastic admirers of Dr. Gregory, the speaker of the afternoon. The message held Christ up as the ideal teacher, a pattern for all Sunday school teachers. The biographies of the great teachers, Mathew, to the Jews, Mark, to the Romans, Luke, to the Greeks, and John, to all mankind, were commented upon and the value of the study of their work to the Bible student pointed out. Dr. Gregory's speech was interesting and instructive and well appreciated by the audience.

Bulgarians and Greeks Clash on the Frontier

(By International News Service)

Berlin, Nov. 16.—There has been a clash between the Greeks and Bulgarians on the frontier, a dispatch to the Tagblatt states. The hostile attitude of Greece has caused uneasiness in Sofia. Greek sentries attacked the peasants and the Bulgarians defended them.

In the fight four Bulgarians were killed.

The Tagblatt estimates that the Bulgarians will demand reparation because of the entrance of Greeks into their country. The Bulgarian government and Greece have not yet reached an understanding.

Good evening! A pretty good evening to do your Christmas buying.

Looks as if Indian summer had also come the way of other sub-seasons of the present year.

The constitution and not President Wilson stands between the lame ducks and official positions.

The Monroe Doctrine is not a "scrap of paper," it is a law written in the hearts of the American people.

"Give me the legislature and the people may have the governor," is the way Senator Pennington would put it.

If England wants to remain the mistress of the seas she will have to keep protecting her warships against German submarines.

Some people who go to church to hear nothing but the music may imagine the truths of the sermon without being aware of it.

Certainly, the honorable Japanese will withdraw from Chinese territory, now that they have driven the Germans out of Tsing Tau.

Over in France and Belgium millions of men are fighting to the death, not for a principle, but in an attempt to prove that war is a blessing to a country.

England has lost one of her grand old soldiers in the death of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, whose services in Africa and India had endeared him to the British people.

Football isn't such a brutal game, after all; there have been more people killed in automobile accidents than in football games since the season for the latter sport opened.

A Kansas City editor knocked out two men who twisted him about the waist of the recent election in that state. It isn't safe to monkey with an editor or a buzz saw.

Pity that some of the United States army officers who are dancing attendance at Washington tangoes and pink teas could not be sent to Belgium to see how real soldiers fight.

If there is no law on the statute books of Pennsylvania punishing careless hunters for setting fire to the woods the sooner such a law is enacted the sooner justice will be done the timber owners.

The Kaiser might ship some of that German culture to New York for distribution among the Riddlers and other German descendants who are trying to fool the American people into believing that the Kaiser is sprouting angelic wings.

The Turkish minister of war promises his soldiers that they shall reach Paradise if they fight in the war against Russia. A considerable number of the Turks are likely to reach some place not on this terrestrial globe before the war closes, alright.

If the railroads are wise they will make hay while the sun shines and increase their passenger rates in accordance with the advice given them by the interstate commerce commission. The time is coming when the interstate commerce commission will be out of a job.

It is probable that the Mexicans are doing some "watchful waiting" on their own hook; waiting until the American troops are withdrawn from Vera Cruz so that both rebels and revolutionaries may resume their predilections upon the property of Americans and foreigners.

The warning issued by the borough board of health regarding the prevention of the spread of diphtheria in this community should be heeded by the citizens. School authorities especially should be watchful lest this dread disease makes its appearance in the schools and be thus distributed throughout the town.

IS IT MANSLAUGHTER?

Despite the verdict of the coroner's jury that the death of State Forester Jerrald, who was mistaken for a deer in the Slate Run district of Lycoming county and shot by a hunter, was accidental, the district attorney of that county has brought the charge of manslaughter against the hunter. It is hoped that this case will be permitted to go through the courts in order that those who go into the woods to hunt may discover whether or not there is, under the law, any punishment for the reckless gun toter who shoots at any and every moving thing in the woods without first ascertaining whether what he shoots at is a human being.

If a man were to stand on the court house sidewalk in Clearfield and fire off a gun and the bullet were to kill a citizen there is no doubt that the shooter would be prosecuted for manslaughter, although he might claim that he was hunting game. What difference is there between the hunter in town and the hunter in the woods? In neither place should the man behind the gun imagine that he can shoot at a human being and then expect to be exonerated from blame on the ground that he mistook the other man for a deer or a rabbit. The outcome of the Lycoming county case will be awaited with much interest by hunters who know how prone the fool behind the gun is to mistake a human being for some species of game.

BETTER ARMY NEEDED

While we are congratulating ourselves that the United States is fortunate in being situated so far from the scene of conflict in Europe, we should not fail to profit by the lessons which that war is teaching. Of all of the nations which are engaged in the war Germany alone was prepared for the struggle. Germany's military rulers knew that the day would come when their country would be compelled to fight her enemies, and for more than a half century Germany has been preparing for war. It must be acknowledged that there were no blunders in Germany's methods of preparing for the inevitable war.

This is the lesson which the United States should learn from the European war: No matter which nations shall finally gain the victory in the European war the time will come when the United States will have to uphold the Monroe Doctrine by something more substantial than words. That time may come within the next quarter of a century, but it will come too soon if the United States is not prepared to maintain her stand on the question of preventing the colonization of any part of the American continent by the people of any foreign nation.

The leading American thinkers advocate a larger and better army for the United States, an army commensurate in size and equipment with the importance of the greatest country in the world. Talk of peace may be all well enough for theorists, but practical men know that there can be no peace until the peoples of this world shall have changed their natures. The nation which is best prepared for war, if it is governed wisely, is the nation which can say whether or not war shall come. If the United States desires to live in peace it will have to have behind it an army and navy strong enough to back up its desire.

SIX SMALL SMILES

Jail Courtesy
 Warden—Your wife is here and wants to speak to you.
 Prisoner—Oh, tell her I've gone out.—Man Lacht.

Cause of His Downfall
 Visitor—What brought you here?
 Prisoner—I owe my downfall to a woman.

Visitor—How was that, my poor man?
 Prisoner—She yelled for the police.

Force of Habit
 Doctor: I have to report sir, that you are the father of triplets.
 Politician: Impossible! I'll demand a recount.—Puck.

Resentment
 "Was it your craving for drink that brought you here?" asked the sympathetic visitor at the jail.

"Great Scott, ma'am! Do I look so stupid as to mistake this place for a saloon?"—Washington Star.

A Sting in His "Compliment"
 "My dear," said Mr. Hawkins to his better half the other evening, "do you know that you have one of the best voices in the world?"

"Indeed?" queried the delighted Mrs. H., with a look of pride at the compliment. "Do you really think so?"
 "I certainly do," answered the heartless husband, "because it would have been worn out long ago."—Kansas City Star.

The Impassioned Statement
 While he was talking on the job, All tiresias day by day, Some other man kidnapped the mob And took the job away.
 —Washington Star.

OPPORTUNITY

They do me wrong who say I come no more
 When once I knock and fail to find you in;
 For every day I stand outside your door,
 And bid you wake and rise to fight and win.

Wait not for precious chances passed away,
 Weep not for golden ages on the wane;
 Each night I burn the records of the day,
 At sunrise every soul is born again.

Laugh like a boy at splendors that have sped,
 To vanished joys he blind and deaf and dumb.
 My judgments and the dead past, with its dead,
 But never find a moment yet to come.

Though deep in mine, wring not your hands and weep,
 I lend my arm to all who say, "I can."
 No shameless suitors ever seek so deep
 But he might rise and be again a man.

PENANTS FOR SALES OF RED CROSS SEALS

Penants or banners will be given by the American Red Cross and the National Association for Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to the 7 counties, cities, towns, and villages in the United States selling the largest number of Red Cross Christmas Seals per capita before January 1, according to an announcement from headquarters in New York.

In order to make the competition even in all parts of the country, the counties, cities and towns, have been grouped according to the population in 1910 into seven classes, as follows: From 500 to 2000; from 2000 to 3000; from 3000 to 5000; from 5000 to 10,000; from 10,000 to 25,000; from 25,000 to 50,000; and over 50,000. A specially prepared penant will be given the county, city, town or village in each class anywhere in the United States selling the largest number of seals per inhabitant.

Last year Cody, Wyoming, was among the largest buyers per capita, selling over 22,000 with a population of 1200. Some cities in New York, Wisconsin, and Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and other states sold three to six per resident. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which is carrying on the promotion of the sale, considers that any city of 10,000 to 100,000 population ought to sell at least three cents worth of seals per inhabitant.

All of the proceeds from the sale of Red Cross Seals, except the expenses of the sale go to fight tuberculosis in the community, state, city or town where the seals are sold.

LEGAL TRESPASS NOTICES

There are such remarkable differences of opinion as to what constitutes a legal trespass notice, that State Zoologist H. A. Surcouf, Harrisburg, has looked into this matter carefully, and has issued the following timely statement in regard to this important subject:

The law provides that when premises are posted with signs against trespassing it is illegal to enter thereon under penalty of arrest for trespass, which may result in fine of ten dollars ($10.00). There is no definite wording of the notice fixed by law, but it is necessary to state that the property so posted is "Private Premises," and all persons must be warned against entering thereon. The law does not require the notice shall be of any definite stated form of material, nor is any requirement made as to the size of the letters, nor the number of notices to be posted, the way they are to be put up or displayed, nor the distance apart at which they are to be fixed.

This means that a notice printed by hand or type, stating that the premises are "private" and warning against trespassing, is legal and must be respected. It is not necessary for an owner to show that the trespasser has damaged property, in order to arrest and prosecute him for trespass, and the payment of a gun license fee does not permit the gunner to enter on posted premises, whether cultivated or not. Gunners have no more right to enter posted woods than cultivated property.

It is to be inferred, that the notices will be sufficiently large to be seen at a reasonable distance, and placed close enough together that gunners can have opportunity to see them before entering the premises. However, the fact that a gunner has not seen the notice does not excuse him from the responsibility of entering upon posted premises and the liability of arrest, without warning, subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars ($100) for resisting arrest for violation of any provision of the act.

AMUSEMENTS

Manhattan Players Tonight
 The Manhattan Players commences its engagement at the opera house tonight presenting "A Man of The Hour," under most favorable auspices. A very large advance sale, not alone for tonight, but for the entire week indicates a succession of big houses worthy in every way of the popular attraction. It will be remembered that "A Man Of The Hour," was and is one of the most popular and successful plays in one night stands. The unusual success of the Manhattan is due to many things, the splendid vaudeville features, while the stage settings and electrical effects are the most elaborate with a popular priced attraction. Then again there is the acting company that boasts of some of the best stock actors in the country. It includes Milton Goodhand, leading man, W. James Bedell, Jack Ormsby, Paul Hillis, Merrill Holmes, Frank Allen, Miss Virginia Powell, leading lady, Miss Marlowe, Blanch Phelps. The plays will be changed nightly during the weeks engagement. The usual matinees will be given.

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST AT TRINITY M. E. CLOSES

The membership contest in the Trinity Methodist church was closed yesterday. There are in all, counting the cradle roll and home department, 1096 members in the Sunday school. Yesterday there were 590 members present. The primary department was 50 pupils below the average number because of the rain. This is the largest attendance in the history of the school at any regular session. Forty-eight new scholars were enrolled yesterday.

The superintendent, H. J. Flegal, offered some time ago to serve a supper to the class which the largest number, and an interesting contest followed. A committee will meet this evening to decide who won in the contest. No members of other Sunday schools who enrolled during the contest will be counted. The classes of John H. Moore and A. H. Woodward have the largest enrollment. To accommodate each of these classes, which number about 90, it was necessary to cut arches into other classrooms and enlarge them. Mr. Woodward's class has decided that if it is the winner it will ask Mr. Flegal to give the money which the supper would have cost to the piano fund for the infant department.

The Sunday school also voted yesterday instead of having a candy treat at Christmas time for the entire school to treat only the infant department and use the rest of the money for the piano which they wish to present to this department at Christmas time.

LORD ROBERTS DIES WHILE VISITING ARMY

London, Nov. 16.—Field Marshal Lord Frederick Sleigh Roberts died Saturday night in France, of pneumonia.

Lord Roberts had gone to the front to visit his favorite soldiers, the Indian troops, and was caught in a storm that swept the battlefield.

Field Marshal Earl Roberts was probably the best known and best beloved of all England's soldiers. "Little Bobs," as Tommy Atkins endearingly terms him, had been since he served as a subaltern in the Indian mutiny the idol of his men, while his success in bringing light to the nation in its darkest hour in South Africa established him firmly in the hearts of his countrymen.

He was 82 years of age.

E. W. King Dead. E. W. King, private secretary to Congressman C. E. Patton, of this district, died in Washington Friday as the result of a carbuncle on his neck.

The late residence of D. W. Speck, on West Market street, is nearly completed and they expect to occupy the place very soon.

The new system is intended to remedy, by providing for the rapid issue and retirement of circulating notes as the needs of business may demand. These notes may be secured by securities other than government bonds.

The second defect is remedied by requiring all the banks in the district which are members of the new system to deposit a part of their cash reserves with the federal reserve bank. Under the old law the banks have had these funds on deposit with various national banks located in certain cities and approved by the controller of the currency. The difficulty has been that while the depositing bank has been allowed to count this amount as so much cash, the reserve bank in the city has counted it as a deposit and has been allowed to loan all but a comparatively small percentage, which was held in actual cash as reserve. In times of financial stress, when the depositing banks drew upon their reserves, it resulted in a contraction of loans, which greatly aggravated panic conditions.

In other great commercial countries where the reserves of the banks are centralized, and where the issue of currency is based on the demands of business, it has been observed that financial panics rarely occur and never are so severe as in this country.

Proof of the efficiency of laws permitting a more elastic currency is furnished by the working out of currency law passed in 1908 as a result of the panic of the previous year. The provisions of this act were never applied until after the outbreak of the European war last August. When hostilities opened a great many foreign investors immediately turned their holdings into cash and withdrew it. This created a demand for money the like of which had not been known since 1907. Congress being in session the currency law of 1908 was amended to allow the national banks, by depositing approved securities, to issue emergency notes in excess of the amount allowed them under the national bank act. This privilege was made use of and the demand for money was met. To meet it, however, $375,000,000 of emergency notes were issued to the banks by the treasury department. This meant an increase of 50 per cent. in the amount of bank notes in circulation.

Had similar laws been in operation in 1907 the disastrous panic which occurred in that year could doubtless have been avoided, as would also have been the business breakdown which always follows a panic.

The control of the federal reserve banks is vested in the federal reserve board composed of seven men appointed by the president. The headquarters of the board is in Washington. The men chosen by President Wilson are men who will represent the best financial and business interests of the country.

The relation of the new banks to the business community will be indirect for the law provides that they may not engage in commercial banking but that their dealings will be confined almost entirely to those banks in their respective districts which have become members of the system by subscribing for stock in the federal reserve bank.

But this does not mean that the individual has no interest in the matter. There is nothing which more fundamentally affects the welfare of each citizen of the land than the strength or weakness of our banking system. With the proper support of the public and a disposition on the part of our legislators to make such changes in the law as the development of the country may require from time to time the federal reserve system will give added safety to all our banking institutions whether members or not.

It will not serve as a panacea for all our financial ills. We will undoubtedly have periods of business depression in the future as in the past. But those who have studied the situation believe that it will eliminate financial panics which have been the most serious feature of our past.

HOME TALENT MINSTRELS PROMISES A RICH TREAT

Preparations for the home talent minstrel show to be given here December 3 and 4 are progressing rapidly under the efficient management of Mr. Johnson. A rehearsal will be held this evening at 7:30 in the Y. M. C. A.

The show, which is a fast rounding up of a finished product, promises to be a radical departure from the past. A track of home talent shows given here in the past. It is an attractive, humorous entertainment which the townspeople are looking forward to with eager anticipation.

SEVERAL HUMOROUS FILMS AT THE GLOBE TONIGHT

"Brown's Butler." Brown's titled Jack Reed, comes to visit him just as he is leaving on a trip and he tells Jack to make himself at home in his apartments. The butler is a half sized man and Jack begins to think mysterious things are happening as he does not see the butler and calls in a detective to solve the mystery.

"The Fable of the Manxovers of Joel and Father's Second Time on Earth." Father is feeling badly and his son persuades him to sign his property over to him. The son does not treat the father well after this, and he has his attorney look up the records and gets his property back much to the son's consternation.

"Andy Has a Tooth Ache." A humorous reel this evening. Andy has never felt the big has been like but the tooth ache is a different thing.

"The District Attorney's Burglar." A fascinating romance at the Globe this evening.

"European War Extra" and "World Current Events" at the Globe this evening.

TWO GOOD PICTURES SHOWN AT OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

"Detective Daring" a strong drama of the Sherlock Holmes variety at the opera house this evening, in three reels.

"A Man, A Girl, Another Man." Is an interesting one reel feature this evening. The story is a Ray comedy well acted and having a well developed plot.

MATRIMONIAL

Clair C. Pickinger and Edith Mc Neal were quietly married in the Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. Perce. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wright. Mr. and Mrs. Wright immediately after the ceremony for a trip through the country. The bride wore a blue traveling suit and carried white chrysanthemums and carnations.

WARNING TO CITIZENS FROM BOARD OF HEALTH

Diphtheria is now epidemic in many of the smaller towns near by; Boardman, Glen Richy, Altoport and Bloomington are affected. It will therefore be wise for those persons visiting these places from Clearfield to use every precaution not to come into contact with cases of diphtheria and avoid contracting the disease or carrying infectious material. The only two sources of infectious disease reported in our borough in the past two months have been diphtheria. We should use every precaution to avoid the spread of this malady.

The toilet of the nose and throat should be carefully attended to. If there are coughs and colds they should be treated. Irritation of the throat and inflamed tonsils should receive attention, as such mucous membranes furnish an excellent soil upon which the diphtheria germs will rapidly multiply and cause the membrane to form, with full development of the accompanying symptoms. Where doubt exists, call your family physician early. Fear of quarantine should not influence you; your physician will not suggest this measure unless he conscientiously believes it necessary. We should all be willing to abide by the quarantine measure as this offers our chief weapon in the prevention of general epidemics. During the public school terms contagious disease frequently may become epidemic in an incredibly short time. I therefore require the utmost vigilance to avert any apparent outbreak. We ask the assistance of every citizen in this most laudable undertaking.

Items of Interest, Gathered Here and There, For The Boys Who Man The Trains

ANOTHER INCREASE IN FARES ON THE RAILROADS

Readjustments for the most part increases, in both suburban and through passenger rates were announced by the Pennsylvania Railroad company Friday night, effective December 15. Through fares are placed on a basis of 2 1-2 cents a mile as the maximum rate making the fare from Philadelphia to Chicago $19.10 instead of $18.22 as at present. The rate to Indianapolis has been increased $1.31 and proportionate readjustments have been made to all western points.

The company recently increased the price of mileage books from 2 to 2 1-4 cents a mile and in its announcement tonight says:

"As the interstate commerce commission has declared it to be a matter of public policy that each branch of the railroad service should contribute its proper share to the cost of operation and of return upon the property devoted to the use of the public, the Pennsylvania railroad is now making certain other readjustments in passenger rates."

New S. & C. Schedule

A new schedule that will go into effect on the B. & O. railroad about December 1 is expected to give the Somerset & Cambria branch an additional train daily. This train is expected to leave Johnstown about 9 o'clock in the morning and will make connections with fast trains east and west at Rockwood. Many people in this vicinity have been clamoring for such service for years and the indications are that their appeals have finally borne weight.

Railway Notes.

It is estimated that the work of making the valuation of railroads in this country will take about five years before being completed.

The assessment of the property of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad was increased about $4,000,000 and that of Burlington $2,000,000 by the railroad committee of the Illinois state board of equalization.

The Illinois Public Utilities commission has suspended the proposed increased rates on milk by railroads throughout the state. The commission will hear further arguments March 3.

The railroads committee of the Illinois board of equalization has decided to increase the assessment on the property of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad approximately $4,000,000 and that on the property of the Burlington approximately $2,000,000.

Central Passenger association roads will on December 7 follow the example of trunk lines and increase the price of mileage to 2 1-4 cents per mile, making the net cost of books $22.50. As laws of Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Illinois, among others, provide for a 2-cent maximum fare, the proposed new books will not be available in those states and their issue, therefore, will be confined to interstate travel.

SPORTING NEWS

SPORTING GOSSIP OF AN INTERESTING NATURE

Four major league clubs may have new managers next year.

Those clubs are: The Yanks, White Sox, Cubs and Naps.

It seems certain that the Yanks will have a new pilot, but it is not at all certain that changes will be made in the three other clubs mentioned. Hank O'Day, the Cub boss, has been reported as "certain to go" on about 47 different occasions, but Hank still lingers on the job, and may get another chance in 1915.

Birmingham, of the Naps, is booked by a contract that still has two years to run. His work wasn't satisfactory last year, but Owner Somers is confronted with the alternative of firing him and paying his salary long with that of another manager or keeping him and trusting to luck for the 1915 season.

Jimmy Callahan, of the White Sox, is reported as "slated for release." But Jimmy says he knows nothing about it and Owner Comiskey is silent.

Probably Garry Herrman has been so active in negotiating for peace because he has designs on the Nobel Peace prize.

Jim Buckley, who manages Gunboat Smith, isn't able to figure out why some people say that Gunboat lost his title of "white hope champion" by being knocked out by Sam Langford, the negro heavyweight.

"Of course, there's no denying the fact that Gunboat was knocked out," says Jim. "But by winning the fight Langford didn't win the white hope championship did he? If he didn't win it, it still belongs to Gunboat, doesn't it?"

George Stallings is battling with the Rube Marquard for the title of worst actor in baseball—anywhere else. The battle is close.

Connie Mack has issued forth with this: "The report that I will buy the Yankees is false."

"The report that I will sell Eddie Collins is false."

"The report that I will succeed Ben Shibe as president of the Athletics is false."

Mack, however, refused to make any statement concerning the report that his team was beaten in four successive engagements with some Johnny Boston Beans about six weeks ago.

Connie being cautious and conservative probably will not make any statement until he has had time to look into the report.

Great preparations are being made for the winter racing season at Juarez, Mex., which opens on November 26. The cafe proprietors in El Paso, Tex., just across the river from Juarez, have laid in large stocks of high priced refreshments.

The Juarez season will cover 100 days. Stalls have been built to accommodate about 1,000 horses, and present indications are that they all will be used.

The federal league has a fine case of libel against the newspaper that permitted one of its headline writers to state that "Feds will Rival Naps in Cleveland."

Jumping to the Feds seems to be the great winter sport of ball players. Those who aren't inclined to jump are forced to do a little jumping every few days by newspaper folks.

George White, the veteran Giant pitcher, may become manager of the Syracuse, N. Y., team next year, in case that team's franchise is shifted from the New York State league to the International league. Syracuse is White's home.

Walsh proved he was a champion by defeating Wolgast, to make a headline. If Walsh hadn't won from the now third-rate Wolgast it would have been a pugilistic crime.

ANNUAL DONATION DAY AT CLEARFIELD HOSPITAL

The Womens Auxiliary of the Clearfield hospital desires to call the attention of the public to the Eighth Annual Donation.

In view of the generous response to the recent "debt raising campaign" it has been thought best to omit, for this year, the customary house-to-house appeal for contributions. The need for renewed supplies is, however, always urgent, and such articles as jellies, canned fruits, groceries, coal, kindling wood, soap, old muslin, etc. will be gratefully welcomed at any time.

The week beginning November 23 has been fixed as donation week, and the different places of business have kindly offered to deliver at the hospital all goods purchased from them. All other donations may be left at the hospital or the following named residences: Mrs. Frank Fielding, South Front St.; Mrs. W. I. Swoope, Second and Pine Sts.; Mrs. H. B. Powell, South Second St.; Mrs. S. J. Waterworth, Second and Cherry Sts.; Mrs. J. P. O'Loughlin, Front St.; Mrs. A. H. Woodward, Locust St.; Mrs. G. J. Moore, Hillsdale; Mrs. John Barratt, East End; Mrs. Ezra Brown, Weaver St.; Mrs. Alfred Graham, West Market St.; Mrs. Frank G. Harris, West Fourth ave.

Uncle Sam Called to Account

(By International News Service)

Tokio, Nov. 16.—The first allegation that the United States has failed to keep its neutrality inviolate was made in a Kobe dispatch, which declares that the Emden was enabled to find and sink the Troilus as a result of a wireless sent to the Germans from Manila.

The information contained in the wireless was secured from a German merchant who had been arrested and tried as a spy.

EMPEROR WILHELM WITH AND WITHOUT HIS FAMOUS TURNED UP MUSTACHE.

London, Nov. 16.—Reports from Copenhagen are to the effect that the Kaiser has dropped off the aggressively up-pointed ends of his mustache and that the operation has worked a miraculous change in the appearance of the War Lord. The former almost ferocious martial expression has given place to one of complete dejection.

OFFICER WRITES OF GREAT BATTLE

Vivid Description of Fight in Retreat From Mons

798 OF 1000 MEN WERE LOST

Declares That the Conflict Was Worse Than the Boer War—Examples of Foolishness of English Red Tape—Army Goods Held Up Because Nails in Boxes Were Not Regulation.

London, Nov. 16.—A letter from a young officer of the Royal Munster Fusiliers gives an interesting description of the fighting in which his battalion lost 798 in killed, wounded and missing out of a total of 1,000—the heaviest loss sustained by any single unit. It was during the great retreat from Mons. The writer says:

"We fought a small battle just on the frontier, without any losses, and we retreated to Fes, near where we started all the marching. Then the real fighting began. The first I knew of the fighting was when I was awakened at 3 o'clock one morning and ordered to proceed at once to my platoon to reinforce another outpost company which was being attacked. We fought for two days and just as we thought it was all over we found we were surrounded. Then the desperate fighting began.

"I could not describe the horrors of it on paper, but we were about three-quarters of a battalion fighting six German battalions and without any chance of relief. We did our best. We had one section of the artillery and two machine guns with us, which helped a lot, but they were soon knocked out. Our colonel was a wonder to see; he had absolutely no fear and I followed him and helped all I could in every charge, but he was killed by a shell. We had, I think, 10 officers killed, five wounded and the remainder prisoners.

"I was wounded in two places. One bullet had pierced my throat. The pieces of my left arm had been blown away by a piece of shell. Luckily there were no bones broken.

The doctor says it will be all right when the wound heals and that I shall be able to speak when they take the tube out.

"We killed and wounded a great many Germans and they say themselves that we made a gallant fight of it. Our fellows who were in the South African war say it was child's play to this and that all the Boer campaign there never was a battle so

English Red Tape

Not even Lord Kitchener has been able to scrape all of the red tape which has strangled the war office for so long. Despite his arduous labors of organization, however, Kitchener has managed to do something toward introducing business methods in Whitehall, but the "Tite Barnacles" still hold sway in certain departments.

A notable example has just come to light at the docks, where an officer noticed a workman busily engaged in unpacking bottles of port intended for the hospitals in France and Belgium. The cases in which the bottles were originally packed appeared to be quite serviceable and the officer inquired why it was necessary to unpack them.

Then it was explained to him that during the South African war some organizing genius had laid it down that bottles of wine, spirits, etc., for the troops, should be packed in cases of 10. The contractor who supplied the port had sent them in cases of 12 and red tape insisted on the change of cases.

Nails Hold Up Goods

Perhaps a more fragrant case was that of a contractor who had $50,000 worth of goods returned because the packing cases had not been fastened with the right kind of nails. During the Crimean war the British war office decided to use what are known as rose-headed nails and, although modern improvements have installed the flat headed nail in general use, the war office still sticks to the 1857 pattern. Getting a rush order the contractor, who hadn't a rose-headed nail in the place, foolishly imagined that in war time ordinary nails would do, but the "Tite Barnacles" said "No."

MUST PROCURE A PERMIT TO LAY SMALL DRAIN

Sunbury, Nov. 16.—Because it wants to do a simple job of laying a drain pipe to carry surface water off one of its streets here under the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad, with that corporation's consent, borough council has learned that Toner's public-service commission must first give its consent to the legality of the agreement after it learns just what is to be done.

To do this, an advertisement must be printed at least four weeks before a meeting of the commission, after which interested persons are to appear before the body and explain the project in full, all of which, it is believed, will probably double the cost of a bit of work any ordinary laborer can finish.

Clearfield borough asked the Pennsylvania Railroad company to lay the sewer pipe beneath its tracks on the Spruce street sewer line. This was done at the expense of the Railroad company, but the Public Service commission wants ten copies of the form of agreement.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS NOW OPEN

A New Era in The Banking Business in The United States

WILL REMEDY MANY DEFECTS

Centralization of Reserves Will Go a Long Way to Prevent Panics Such as Have Occurred Under the Old Banking Laws—Will Greatly Strengthen the Financial System.

November 16th is the date fixed for the opening of the twelve new federal reserve banks authorized by act of congress last December. The bank for this district is located at Philadelphia. The establishment of these new banks marks a fundamental change in our banking system. Students of finance have agreed that in view of the wonderful growth and industrial development of this country during the last half century our present banking laws are inadequate. The national banking system was established during the civil war, and was called into being by the urgent needs of the federal government. Its primary objects were to provide a market for government bonds and to furnish a stable currency at a time when the country was flooded with depreciated state bank notes. The banks have been working under the same law ever since. Very few amendments have been made. As a war measure it was a success, and it has served the country during a long period of the greatest commercial development in its history.

The new law does not replace the national bank act. Only in a few particulars is that act superseded. Certain weaknesses have developed which have been responsible for several severe financial crises. The most notable have been the panics of 1837, 1893, and 1907. On each of these occasions the business of the country received a set-back from which it took years to recover. These disturbances were due largely to two facts: First, our currency was inelastic; second, our system of reserves was bad.

There are times when a much larger volume of actual money is needed than at others. This is due to changing requirements of business throughout the country, and usually varies with the seasons of the year. The amount of United States notes outstanding is practically fixed. Likewise the supply of metallic money is comparatively constant. Hence any variation in the amount of currency demanded by the needs of the country must be provided for in the issue of bank notes. Under the national banking laws the supply of bank notes could not easily be increased or diminished. This defect

CRYSTAL SPRING CLUB HAS EXCELLENT LUCK

The Crystal Springs Rod and Gun club has had the most successful deer hunt the club has experienced since it came into existence four years ago. Each year the club was only able to secure one deer, but this year, during the first five days of the season, the members secured five mighty nice bucks, two spike bucks, a three prong, a four prong and a five prong.

On Wednesday, the 11th, the second day of the season, the two spike bucks were shot in the morning by former County Treasurer William M. Boyce, of Altoona. In the afternoon the crew left camp at fifteen minutes of one, and at fifteen minutes after 1, John R. Gearhart raised a three prong buck and chased it towards Wayne J. Ammerman, who killed it. This made three for the day.

On Saturday, the fifth day of the season, Charles Shoff, of Madera, saw two big bucks coming towards him and selecting the larger one he downed it with a well placed shot and called to the man on the next watch to him, "Look out, the other one is coming." The man happened to be F. G. Harris, an expert shot, who brought down the four prong. The five deer were brought to town last week and on Saturday evening they attracted a great deal of attention hanging in Kreher's meat market.

The Crystal Springs club is composed of fifty members, most of whom live in this city, but others reside in Pittsburg, Altoona, Madera, Cherry Tree and Heilwood. The camp is located eleven miles north of Clearfield and has the best spring of water on the mountains. This spring flows from under the enormous rock and supplies a reservoir, from which the water is piped to the house and a large trout dam, which contains about 5000 brook trout, and is the head of one of the branches of Lick run.

James McKenrick killed a deer and Joe Shaffer got a bear last week.

15 Germans Killed By A Bomb

(By International News Service)

Amsterdam, Nov. 16.—British air-men, passing over Courtrai, Saturday, dropped a bomb on the town.

Fifteen Germans and a number of Belgians were killed.

Assemblyman Alcorn Hurt by Explosion

G. Milton Alcorn, recently elected to the state assembly, was severely burned about the face and neck as the result of an explosion of coal gas in his home in DuBois Sunday morning.

Mr. Alcorn was in the act of lighting the gas that had accumulated in the stove after fresh coal had been placed in the hopper, and when the lighted match was applied an explosion followed, the flash of flame striking him in the face. He was thrown down by the explosion. A physician attended to his injuries. Fortunately his eyes were not affected.

Bulgarians and Greeks Clash on the Frontier

(By International News Service)

Berlin, Nov. 16.—There has been a clash between the Greeks and Bulgarians on the frontier, a dispatch to the Tagblatt states. The hostile attitude of Greece has caused uneasiness in Sofia. Greek sentries attacked the peasants and the Bulgarians defended them.

In the fight four Bulgarians were killed. The Tagblatt estimates that the Bulgarians will demand reparation because of the entrance of Greeks into their country. The Bulgarian government and Greece looked on.

Filling Up New Prison

Six prisoners were taken from the Western Penitentiary, Pittsburgh, to the new penitentiary at Rockview Center county Sunday morning. There are 131 men now confined in the new institution.

An oyster supper will be held in the Mechanics hall on Friday, Nov. 20, for the benefit of the Third Ward Home company. Supper 25 cents, cake and cream extra. Every body invited.

Good evening! A pretty good evening to do your Christmas buying.

Looks as if Indian summer had also come the way of other sub-seasons of the present year.

The constitution and not President Wilson stands between the lame ducks and official positions.

The Monroe Doctrine is not a "scrap of paper," it is a law written in the hearts of the American people.

"Give me the legislature and the people may have the governor," is the way Senator Pennington would put it.

If England wants to remain the mistress of the seas she will have to keep protecting her warships against German submarines.

Some people who go to church to hear nothing but the music may imagine the truths of the sermon without being aware of it.

Certainly, the honorable Japanese will withdraw from Chinese territory, now that they have driven the Germans out of Tsing Tau.

Over in France and Belgium millions of men are fighting to the death, not for a principle, but in an attempt to prove that war is a blessing to a country.

England has lost one of her grand old soldiers in the death of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, whose services in Africa and India had endeared him to the British people.

Football isn't such a brutal game, after all; there have been more people killed in automobile accidents than in football games since the season for the latter sport opened.

A Kansas City editor knocked out two men who talked him about the result of the recent election in that state. It isn't safe to monkey with an editor or a buzz saw.

Fifty that some of the United States army officers who are dancing attendance at Washington tangoes and pink teas could not be sent to Belgium to see how real soldiers fight.

If there is no law on the statute books of Pennsylvania punishing careless hunters for setting fire to the woods the sooner such a law is enacted the sooner justice will be done the timber owners.

The Kaiser might ship some of that German culture to New York for distribution among the Riddlers and other German descendants who are trying to fool the American people into believing that the Kaiser is sprouting angelic wings.

The Turkish minister of war promises his soldiers that they shall reach Paradise if they fight in the war against Russia. A considerable number of the Turks are likely to reach some place not on this terrestrial globe before the war closes, alright.

If the railroads are wise they will make hay while the sun shines and increase their passenger rates in accordance with the advice given them by the interstate commerce commission. The time is coming when the interstate commerce commission will be out of a job.

It is probable that the Mexicans are doing some "watchful waiting" on their own hook; waiting until the American troops are withdrawn from Vera Cruz so that both rebels and revolutionaries may resume their predations upon the property of Americans and foreigners.

The warning issued by the borough board of health regarding the prevention of the spread of diphtheria in this community should be heeded by the citizens. School authorities especially should be watchful lest this dread disease makes its appearance in the schools and be thus distributed throughout the town.

IS IT MANSLAUGHTER?

Despite the verdict of the coroner's jury that the death of State Forester Jerrald, who was mistaken for a deer in the Slate Run district of Lycoming county and shot by a hunter, was accidental, the district attorney of that county has brought the charge of manslaughter against the hunter. It is hoped that this case will be permitted to go through the courts in order that those who go into the woods to hunt may discover whether or not there is, under the law, any punishment for the reckless gun toter who shoots at any and every moving thing in the woods without first ascertaining whether what he shoots at is a human being.

If a man were to stand on the court house sidewalk in Clearfield and fire off a gun and the bullet were to kill a citizen there is no doubt that the shooter would be prosecuted for manslaughter, although he might claim that he was hunting game. What difference is there between the hunter in town and the hunter in the woods? In neither place should the man behind the gun imagine that he can shoot at a human being and then expect to be exonerated from blame on the ground that he mistook the other man for a deer or a rabbit. The outcome of the Lycoming county case will be awaited with much interest by hunters who know how prone the fool behind the gun is to mistake a human being for some species of game.

BETTER ARMY NEEDED

While we are congratulating ourselves that the United States is fortunate in being situated so far from the scene of conflict in Europe, we should not fail to profit by the lessons which that war is teaching. Of all of the nations which are engaged in the war Germany alone was prepared for the struggle. Germany's military rulers knew that the day would come when their country would be compelled to fight her enemies, and for more than a half century Germany has been preparing for war. It must be acknowledged that there were no blunders in Germany's methods of preparing for the inevitable war.

This is the lesson which the United States should learn from the European war: No matter which nations shall finally gain the victory in the European war the time will come when the United States will have to uphold the Monroe Doctrine by something more substantial than words. That time may come within the next quarter of a century, but it will come too soon if the United States is not prepared to maintain her stand on the question of preventing the colonization of any part of the American continent by the people of any foreign nation.

The leading American thinkers advocate a larger and better army for the United States, an army commensurate in size and equipment with the importance of the greatest country in the world. Talk of peace may be all well enough for theorists, but practical men know that there can be no peace until the peoples of this world shall have changed their natures. The nation which is best prepared for war, if it is governed wisely, is the nation which can say whether or not war shall come. If the United States desires to live in peace it will have to have behind it an army and navy strong enough to back up its desire.

A Sting in His "Compliment."
 "My dear," said Mr. Hawkins to his better half the other evening, "do you know that you have one of the best voices in the world?"
 "Indeed?" replied the delighted Mrs. H., with a look of pride at the compliment. "Do you really think so?"
 "I certainly do," answered the heartless husband, "because it would have been some time ago."—Kansas City Star.

OPPORTUNITY

They do me wrong who say I come no more
 When once I knock and fail to find you in;
 For every day I stand outside your door,
 And bid you wake and rise to fight and win.

Wait not for precious chances passed away,
 Weep not for golden ages on the wane;
 Each night I burn the records of the day,
 At sunrise every soul is born again.

Laugh like a boy at splendors that have sped,
 To vanished joys he blind and deaf and dumb.
 My judgments and the dead past, with its dead,
 But never find a moment yet to come.

Though deep in mine, writing not your hands and weep,
 I lend my arm to all who say, "I can."
 No shame-faced suitors ever seek so deep
 But he might rise and be again a man.
 —Walter Malone, in the Philadelphia Record.

PENANTS FOR SALES OF RED CROSS SEALS

Penants or banners will be given by the American Red Cross and the National Association for Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to the 7 counties, cities, towns, and villages in the United States selling the largest number of Red Cross Christmas Seals per capita before January 1, according to an announcement from headquarters in New York.

In order to make the competition even in all parts of the country, the counties, cities and towns, have been grouped according to the population in 1910 into seven classes, as follows: From 500 to 2000; from 2000 to 3000; from 3000 to 5000; from 5000 to 10,000; from 10,000 to 25,000; from 25,000 to 50,000; and over 50,000. A specially prepared penant will be given the county, city, town or village in each class anywhere in the United States selling the largest number of seals per inhabitant.

Last year Cody, Wyoming, was among the largest buyers per capita, selling over 22,000 with a population of 1200. Some cities in New York, Wisconsin, and Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and other states sold three to six per resident. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which is carrying on the promotion of the sale, considers that any city of 10,000 to 100,000 population ought to sell at least three cents worth of seals per inhabitant.

All of the proceeds from the sale of Red Cross Seals, except the expenses of the sale go to fight tuberculosis in the community, state, city or town where the seals are sold.

LEGAL TRESPASS NOTICES

There are such remarkable differences of opinion as to what constitutes a legal trespass notice, that State Zoologist H. A. Surcouf, Harrisburg, has looked into this matter carefully, and has issued the following timely statement in regard to this important subject:

The law provides that when premises are posted with signs against trespassing it is illegal to enter thereon under penalty of arrest for trespass, which may result in fine of ten dollars ($10.00). There is no definite wording of the notice fixed by law, but it is necessary to state that the property so posted is "Private Premises," and all persons must be warned against entering thereon. The law does not require the notice shall be of any definite stated form of material, nor is any requirement made as to the size of the letters, nor the number of notices to be posted, the way they are to be put up or displayed, nor the distance apart at which they are to be fixed.

This means that a notice printed by hand or type, stating that the premises are "private" and warning against trespassing, is legal and must be respected. It is not necessary for an owner to show that the trespasser has damaged property, in order to

Manhattan Players Tonight
 The Manhattan Players commences its engagement at the opera house tonight presenting "A Man of The Hour," under most favorable auspices. A very large advance sale, not alone for tonight, but for the entire week indicates a succession of big houses worthy in every way of the popular attraction. It will be remembered that "A Man Of The Hour," was and is one of the most popular and successful plays in one night stands. The unusual success of the Manhattan is due to many things, the splendid vaudeville features, while the stage settings and electrical effects are the most elaborate with a popular priced attraction. Then again there is the acting company that boasts of some of the best stock actors in the country. It includes Milton Goodhand, leading man, W. James Bedell, Jack Ormsby, Paul Hillis, Merrill Holmes, Frank Allen, Miss Virginia Powell, leading lady, Miss Marlowe, Blanch Phelps. The plays will be changed nightly during the weeks engagement. The usual matinees will be given.

arrest and prosecute him for trespass, and the payment of a gun license fee does not permit the gunner to enter on posted premises, whether cultivated or not. Gunners have no more right to enter posted woods than cultivated property. It is to be inferred, that the notices will be sufficiently large to be seen at a reasonable distance, and placed close enough together that gunners can have opportunity to see them before entering the premises. However, the fact that a gunner has not seen the notice does not excuse him from the responsibility of entering upon posted premises and the liability of arrest, without warning, subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars ($100) for resisting arrest for violation of any provision of the act.

The new system is intended to remedy, by providing for the rapid issue and retirement of circulating notes as the needs of business may demand. These notes may be secured by securities other than government bonds.

The second defect is remedied by requiring all the banks in the district which are members of the new system to deposit a part of their cash reserves with the federal reserve bank. Under the old law the banks have had these funds on deposit with various national banks located in certain cities and approved by the controller of the currency. The difficulty has been that while the depositing bank has been allowed to count this amount as so much cash, the reserve bank in the city has counted it as a deposit and has been allowed to loan all but a comparatively small percentage, which was held in actual cash as reserve. In times of financial stress, when the depositing banks drew upon their reserves, it resulted in a contraction of loans, which greatly aggravated panic conditions.

In other great commercial countries where the reserves of the banks are centralized, and where the issue of currency is based on the demands of business, it has been observed that financial panics rarely occur and never are so severe as in this country.

Proof of the efficiency of laws permitting a more elastic currency is furnished by the working out of currency law passed in 1908 as a result of the panic of the previous year. The provisions of this act were never applied until after the outbreak of the European war last August. When hostilities opened a great many foreign investors immediately turned their holdings into cash and withdrew it. This created a demand for money the like of which had not been known since 1907. Congress being in session the currency law of 1908 was amended to allow the national banks, by depositing approved securities, to issue emergency notes in excess of the amount allowed them under the national bank act. This privilege was made use of and the demand for money was met. To meet it, however, $375,000,000 of emergency notes were issued to the banks by the treasury department. This meant an increase of 50 per cent. in the amount of bank notes in circulation.

Had similar laws been in operation in 1907 the disastrous panic which occurred in that year could doubtless have been avoided, as would also have been the business breakdown which always follows a panic.

The control of the federal reserve banks is vested in the federal reserve board composed of seven men appointed by the president. The headquarters of the board is in Washington. The men chosen by President Wilson are men who will represent the best financial and business interests of the country.

The relation of the new banks to the business community will be indirect for the law provides that they may not engage in commercial banking but that their dealings will be confined almost entirely to those banks in their respective districts which have become members of the system by subscribing for stock in the federal reserve bank.

But this does not mean that the individual has no interest in the matter. There is nothing which more fundamentally affects the welfare of each citizen of the land than the strength or weakness of our banking system. With the proper support of the public and a disposition on the part of our legislators to make such changes in the law as the development of the country may require from time to time the federal reserve system will give added safety to all our banking institutions whether members or not.

It will not serve as a panacea for all our financial ills. We will undoubtedly have periods of business depression in the future as in the past. But those who have studied the situation believe that it will eliminate financial panics which have been the most serious feature of our past.

WARNING TO CITIZENS FROM BOARD OF HEALTH

Diphtheria is now epidemic in many of the smaller towns near by; Boardman, Glen Richy, Altoport and Bloomington are affected. It will therefore be wise for those persons visiting these places from Clearfield to use every precaution not to come into contact with cases of diphtheria and avoid contracting the disease or carrying infectious material. The only two sources of infectious disease reported in our borough in the past two months have been diphtheria. We should use every precaution to avoid the spread of this malady.

The toilet of the nose and throat should be carefully attended to. If there are coughs and colds they should be treated. Irritation of the throat and inflamed tonsils should receive attention, as such mucous membranes furnish an excellent soil upon which the diphtheria germs will rapidly multiply and cause the membrane to form, with full development of the accompanying symptoms. Where doubt exists, call your family physician early. Fear of quarantine should not influence you; your physician will not suggest this measure unless he conscientiously believes it necessary. We should all be willing to abide by the quarantine measure as this offers our chief weapon in the prevention of general epidemics. During the public school terms contagious disease frequently may become epidemic in an incredibly short time. I therefore require the utmost vigilance to avoid any apparent outbreaks. We ask the assistance of every citizen in this most laudable undertaking.

RAILROAD NEWS

Items of Interest, Gathered Here and There, For The Boys Who Man The Trains

ANOTHER INCREASE IN FARES ON THE RAILROADS

Readjustments for the most part increases, in both suburban and through passenger rates were announced by the Pennsylvania Railroad company Friday night, effective December 15. Through fares are placed on a basis of 2 1-2 cents a mile as the maximum rate making the fare from Philadelphia to Chicago $19.10 instead of $18.22 as at present. The rate to Indianapolis has been increased $1.31 and proportionate readjustments have been made to all western points.

The company recently increased the price of mileage books from 2 to 2 1-4 cents a mile and in its announcement tonight says:

"As the interstate commerce commission has declared it to be a matter of public policy that each branch of the railroad service should contribute its proper share to the cost of operation and of return upon the property devoted to the use of the public, the Pennsylvania railroad is now making certain other readjustments in passenger rates."

New S. & C. Schedule
A new schedule that will go into effect on the B. & O. railroad about December 1 is expected to give the Somerset & Cambria branch an additional train daily. This train is expected to leave Johnstown about 9 o'clock in the morning and will make connections with fast trains east and west at Rockwood. Many people in this vicinity have been clamoring for such service for years and the indications are that their appeals have finally borne weight.

It is estimated that the work of making the valuation of railroads in this country will take about five years before being completed.

The assessment of the property of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad was increased about $4,000,000 and that of Burlington $2,000,000 by the railroad committee of the Illinois state board of equalization.

The Illinois Public Utilities commission has suspended the proposed increased rates on milk by railroads throughout the state. The commission will hear further arguments March 3.

The railroads committee of the Illinois board of equalization has decided to increase the assessment on the property of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad approximately $4,000,000 and that on the property of the Burlington approximately $2,000,000.

Central Passenger association roads will on December 7 follow the example of trunk lines and increase the price of mileage to 2 1-4 cents per mile, making the net cost of books $22.50. As laws of Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Illinois, among others, provide for a 2-cent maximum fare, the proposed new books will not be available in those states and their issue, therefore, will be confined to interstate travel.
